

MODERN LANGUAGE POLICY

Students in the Master of Divinity program may receive credit for up to 6 hours for modern language study in the undergraduate college as elective credit toward the degree. Students who want to enroll in language courses in the College must complete the process for taking courses outside of the School of Divinity. Information about this process is available in the Office of Academic Affairs. Also, undergraduate students are generally given preference for 100-level courses. This means that School of Divinity students can enroll in courses where there are seats available and where the instructor of the course gives her or his permission.
