HISPANIC SUMMER PROGRAM

Wake Forest University School of Divinity is a sponsoring institution of the Hispanic Summer Program, which offers seven 3-credit intensive summer courses during the month of June each year. These courses are taught by Latinx faculty from accredited colleges and universities in the USA and Puerto Rico and are geared towards Latinx students, though a number of seats are available for non-Latinx students. Students may take one course per summer. The course fee for students from sponsoring institutions is $425, which covers tuition, room and board, and up to $500 air fare.
